DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments, filed January 24, 2008, with respect to the rejection(s) of the claim(s) have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Clark et al. (2001/0013819).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

- 2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:
- (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.
- 3. Claims 1-3, 5-9, 11-15, 17-20, and 22-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wittenbreder, Jr. (5,402,329), Gokhale et al. (2004/0046634), Clark et al (2001/0013819), and Liu (2005/0078440). Wittenbreder teaches a zero voltage switching power supply system comprising an inductor (216), which stores energy and supplies energy to switches (206 and 212) to achieve zero voltage switching of the switches, which are arranged in a complementary switching configuration. (Abstract) He goes on to teach the switches being field effect transistors (Col. 25, lines 25-29). He also teaches supplying power to a generic load (226). Wittenbreder fails to explicitly teach an inductor whose inductance increases as current through the inductor decreases, nor does he teach shape of the core of the inductor, nor does he teach the supply system supplying power to an information handling system. Gokhale teaches an inductor having an E-I shaped or a C-shaped core with an air gap. He also teaches the inductor having an inductance that increases as current through the inductor decreases. (Abstract; [0038]; [0060]) Clark teaches an inductor having a core with a non-constant air gap defined by first and second opposed surfaces, at least one of the opposed surfaces being inclined relative to the other of the opposed surfaces. (Figs. 6, 9, 10, 12, 13) Liu teaches an information handling system (a notebook computer) comprising a processor, a memory coupled to the processor, and a power input coupled to the processor and memory. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Wittenbreder's inductor with the above teachings of Gokhale and Clark, since it will reduce the percent total harmonic distortion in the line current and will allow a user to control the inductance of the inductor as needed to produce the user's ideal inductor characteristics. It also would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to supply power from Wittenbreder's power supply system to Liu's information handling system since Wittenbreder was silent as to the load being powered and Liu teaches a load that needs power from a supply system, and will in turn allow use of an information handling system.

Conclusion

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Dru M. Parries whose telephone number is (571) 272-8542. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday -Thursday from 9:00am to 6:00pm. The examiner can also be reached on alternate Fridays.

If attempts to reach the examiner by telephone are unsuccessful, the examiner's supervisor, Michael Sherry, can be reached on 571-272-2084. The fax phone number for the organization where this application or proceeding is assigned is 571-273-8300.
